The Louisville Science Center has been pleased to host the temporary exhibit, Be the Dinosaur, May 24 – September 1, 2008. The exhibit is very well produced and our visitors have enjoyed utilizing the state-of-the-art technology that deeply immerses them in the experience of being a dinosaur.

Inquiry-based learning experiences abound in this exhibit, which provides information throughout about dinosaurs' defense mechanisms, the types of food they eat, and how they utilize their senses. Visitors can then use this information to customize their own dinosaur simulator pod adventures.

This exhibit offers scientifically accurate information in a way that is truly engaging to visitors of all ages, and we commend the developers for producing a high quality experience.

Sincerely,
